Soft Do Over

I think when I started this, I wanted to do something that simply wasn't me. I'm not very social media savvy. I like to share things, but I don't see myself as extraordinarily clever. So, publishing personal thoughts or research on a dedicated website was not in my comfort zone. I overthought almost everything. I think the recent changes will help with that.

I turned off commenting. If people care, they can contact me. I'm going to share things as if I'm talking into an empty room, which is mostly true.

Beyond that, I can't afford to really care because it does me more harm than good.

I will post and share any posts that I believe may interest people.

That's about it.
